Encounter Level: 3

Setting: Forest

Summary: The PCs come across a tree with leaves of gold and fruit made of gems. When they come too close, they are compelled to battle with each other, as the mischievous forest gnome responsible for the illusion laughs at them from the boughs of the now quite mundane tree.

Phase One

As the characters make their way down the forest path on their way to the next village, they hear a faint “tinkling” sound. It’s as if a hundred wind chimes were stirred by the same breeze.

As they walk further, the sound grows louder, and a Listen check DC12 can determine that it is coming from a dense spot in the woods about 100 feet off of the path to the left.

If the PCs investigate, they find the dense underbrush soon thins into a cleared glade, with a single tree situated prominently in the center of the open space. This tree, however, is quite a sight to behold. The tree itself is about 20 feet tall and has branches stretching out about 8 feet from the trunk. The trunk and branches are made of ebony, and the leaves they bear glint pure gold in the sunlight, chiming as they brush against each other in the light wind. A multitude of deep red fruit dangles enticingly from the boughs of the tree, and the characters can see that each one harbors the familiar sparkle found only in the heart of a flawless ruby.

The tree is actually a minor image illusion. If a character touches the tree or otherwise interacts with it, he gets a Will save DC 15. A successful save lets the subject ignore the effect, revealing a very ordinary oak tree beneath the figment.

On one of the lowest boughs — about 10 feet above the ground — lounges a hugely grinning forest gnome. The gnome is a bit under 2 1/2 feet tall, with gray-green skin, dark hair, and green eyes, and is wearing a simple but finely-made commoner’s costume decorated with intricate stitching.

A Wilderness Lore roll DC 10 can identify the creature more specifically as a forest gnome; this is a shy and elusive race known for its tendency to avoid contact with other peoples unless their forest homes are in danger.

This particular forest gnome, however, considers heavily-armed barbarians and fighters tramping about near his burrow to be a definite danger, and is intent on teaching these intruders a lesson. If the PCs see through the illusion before getting within range for the second part of the trap (described below), he’ll talk ingratiatingly to them about what clever adventurers they are to see through his meager magics, and ask them questions about themselves and their journey until they get within 15 feet of the tree.

If the PCs don’t interact with the tree or fail the Will save, they aren’t able to see the gnome hidden behind the illusion in the mundane tree and the figment persists until two rounds after the caster (the gnome, whose name is Dimfoodle) becomes distracted and loses his concentration. This is likely to happen when the next stage of his trap is put into action ...

Phase Two

When the characters get within 15 feet of the tree, Dimfoodle uses his ring of rage to compel the PCs to fight with each other, while he remains safely in his tree.

When the characters start to attack each other, the gnome quickly progresses from his silent giggling to a stifled chortling, and finally isn’t able to contain his mirth any longer — he falls out of the tree when his belly-laughs overtake him. This means his illusion of the golden tree is broken, and the characters can now see their tormentor — if they’re not too busy rough-housing. Dimfoodle takes cover behind the now very unexceptional trunk of the oak tree that is revealed.

When you think your players have done enough damage to each other's characters, or if one of the PCs manages to shake off the effects of the ring and starts to move menacingly toward the gnome, Dimfoodle gets bored (or scared) and makes a break for his burrow, which is about 10 feet behind the tree, and protected by some bramble bushes. When he gets more than 15 feet from the characters, the enchantment is broken — until they come within range again, that is. Unless the party has an abnormally small halfling or gnome among their number, they won't be able to follow the forest gnome underground. This is a good tactic for GMs to use to keep the party from gaining the ring as loot. On the other hand, the PCs might just manage to grab (or brutally slay) Dimfoodle before he can scurry back to his burrow.

In this case, taking the ring by force breaks the spell, but the characters will have to find someone with the Forge Ring feat to enlarge the ring before it will even be able to fit a halfling or gnome PC; there's no way that the ring can be refitted to a Medium-sized character without destroying it.

Ring of Rage

This is a ring made of red gold with a ruby chip mounted into its face. When activated by a command word, the gem glows darkly and the ring causes all living creatures within a 15 foot radius fight each other without noticing any danger they might be in, as in the spell emotion (rage). The enchanted creatures get a +2 morale bonus to Strength and Constitution scores, +1 morale bonus on Will saves, and -1 penalty to AC. The ring does not affect the wearer. The effect lasts until a second command word is spoken, or the ring is removed from the wearer's finger. A Will save DC 16 (not including the morale bonus) negates the effect. The ring can be used once per day.

Caster Level: 7th; Prerequisites: Forge Ring, emotion; Market Price: 5,040 gp

En Route

A D20 ENCOUNTER SOURCEBOOK

On the Road to Adventure

You've scoured the dungeon, looted the dragon's horde, and lived to tell the tale of your brave deeds. Now it's time to push on to the next village, where still more fortune and glory await ... but you have to get there first! On your path lie the centuries-old remains of forgotten wars, strange hallucinogenic plagues, homicidal innkeepers, bloodthirsty magical weapons, demonic livestock, not-quite-abandoned temples, sloshed spirits, bands of thieving children, alien creatures, conniving bandits and brigands, profiteering carneys, mischievous fey, and a host of other obstacles to complicate your journey.

En Route is a collection of short encounters that GMs can easily insert into longer adventures of their own design, or use as transitions between published modules. En Route goes beyond glorified battles with random monsters; the encounters strive to be innovative concepts that can stand on their own merits, and that can be played in less than one hour's time.

The En Route Sourcebook includes:

City Encounters

- A feud between intelligent weapons draws new blood.
- A supernatural artist creates real hazards using only pen and ink.
- A group of children steals a valuable item; will the players fight them with swords and fireballs?
- A circus sideshow creates its freaks from former members of its audience.

Wilderness Encounters

- A band of brigands devises a clever plan to waylay good Samaritans.
- At the site of an ancient temple, a demon invades the heroes' dreams.

- A magical prison entraps an unsuspecting merchant.
- A mischievous trickster turns brothers-in-arms into sworn enemies.
- Wild animals rush to defend the sacred idol of a long-forgotten deity.

Rural Encounters

- A charming country inn becomes a deathtrap for unwary travellers.
- A cave in a trembling hill proves to hold a wrecked ship from another world.
- A malicious spirit wreaks havoc with the heroes' animals.

New D20 Material

En Route gives GMs plenty of new D20 material to scavenge for their own adventures. It features new monsters, magic items, potions, weapons, and special rules.

Here are some examples:

- Phase Beasts are undying guardians from another world.
- The Philosopher's Gun can transform any object into pure gold.
- New rules for Shaken Faith can rob the faithful of their powers.
- The Heroes' Feast can grant special powers that come with a terrible price.
- Kures Dagg ers impart supernatural abilities to their masters while robbing them of their will.
- Fairy Gold can turn rich men into paupers.
- Spirit Mines can trap the unwary in an inescapable prison.
- Natural Ergot fungus can short circuit its victims' brains.
- Stone Apes stand guard over an ancient jungle temple.
- Intoxicating Liquid Sunshine makes a powerful potion of healing.
